the Last Sixteen as Bishop of the Methodist De-

Minneapolis, July 25.—Bishop Isaac W. Joyce, one of the most prominent divines in the Methodist church, died at midnight. He had been in church work for forty years.

Bishop Joyce was known among Methodists as the "evangelistic bishop." 23 KILLED
IN COLLISIONTrains Collided at Liverpool
Last Night.

INJURED MANY OTHERS

Crowded Express Crashed into Stationary Train at Hall Road Station — Road Newly Equipped.

Liverpool, July 25.—An electric express train on the Lancashire and Yorkshire railroad bound from Liverpool to Southampton collided last evening with an empty stationary train at the Hall Road station, causing the death of twenty-three persons and the injury of many.

The first car of the express, which was crowded, was smashed to pieces and only six of its occupants escaped. The road was recently given an electric equipment.

This is the first serious accident that has occurred on an electric railway in England and it filled with horror the numerous waiting passengers standing at the Hall Road station, who were spectators of the disaster. The collision lifted the first car of the express completely off the steel frame and crashed it down again on the unfortunate passengers, twenty of whom were killed outright. More of them would have been killed but for the presence of mind of a Liverpool architect, who seeing a collision was inevitable, shouted to his fellow passengers to throw themselves upon the floor of the car.

Almost immediately after the crash the wreckage burst into flames. The mangled bodies of the dead and the cries of the injured vainly beseeching that they be extricated from the burning wreckage formed a terrible scene and many women on the platform fainted.

The victims included several women and children. Fortunately the badly injured number comparatively few. The cause of the collision is unknown.

The day had been spent in discussion of practical insurance subjects and was given close attention. It was voted that the next annual meeting be held at Montpelier in July, 1906, and it is probably this city will be the permanent place of meeting in the future.

FOUGHT HARD
WITH POLICEEdward Deforge Goes Back to House of Correction.

ARRESTED LAST NIGHT

Kicked Officer Carle, Tried to Disrobe
Another Man When Put in Jail
—Galeani Wanted to Be Locked Up.

After a brief visit in Barre, Edward Deforge left today to return to that resort at Rutland, the state house of correction. Deforge enjoyed six months of liberty and now goes back again for a twelvemonth, having been sentenced in the local city court this forenoon.

His second visit is occasioned through his readiness with his fists on one Samuel Wheeler last night and for an assault on Officer Carle after being placed under arrest.

Deforge met Wheeler, or Wheeler met Deforge, under a spreading maple tree on North Main street, and the former had his spurs on in a minute. Wheeler didn't evince any great desire to fight, but, when pressed, didn't wholly disrobe Deforge. When Officer Hamel arrived the two were "mixin' it up," with the road as the field of battle. The officer annexed Deforge and told Wheeler to go along with him. Wheeler wasn't arrested. Deforge didn't exactly want to go, and when Officer Carle joined he became wild, kicking, clawing and firing a vocabulary of words, which, if patched together, would make a terrifying combination. Officer Carle got two kicks, one in the back and the other in the side, both of which carried power. Philip Halvorsen who happened in the police station about the time Deforge was making the last relay, tried with words to induce the prisoner to enter the cell peacefully. Deforge responded to his good offices by attempting to discharge him. Officer Hamel hugged the man so close that he escaped serious damage.

Deforge had quieted down this morning and readily pleaded guilty to two charges, breach of the peace on Wheeler, and assault on Officer Carle. For the first he was fined $20 with costs of $5.04, and for the second was sentenced to not less than a year and not more than thirteen months in the house of correction, from which he returned last February after serving a sentence for resisting arrest in the town of Washington. Deforge has also been in the local court twice before for breach of the peace.

Wanted to Be Locked Up.

Louis Galeani, distinguished looking, and apparently finely educated, was arrested last night by Deputy Camp, charged with breach of the peace at the Italian picnic last Sunday. When arraigned he gave his occupation as a correspondent and also said that he had a certificate to the bar in Italy. He pleaded not guilty to the alleged offense, and as the case could not be tried last night, Judge Fay put it over to Monday. When several of his friends presented themselves as bondsmen to the amount of $50 Galeani waived them and insisted that the officers lock him up. In spite of the fact that the court was willing to accept the bail Galeani was still firm in his intention to be put in jail, and the officer started with him for a car to Montpelier. Then some of the friends went to Judge Fay and gave themselves as bail without the prisoner's knowledge. Galeani wouldn't hear to the plan, and his friends had to pull him away from the officer.

John Conuskey paid a fine yesterday for a first offense of intoxication.

EX-ALDERMAN MANN EXPLAINS.

Tells How Dewey Street Was So Named,
and Thinks Law Was Complied With.

Mr. Editor: If you will kindly allow me I would like to give the real facts of the laying of Dewey street and the changing of the name of the so-called Carleton street, which are, if I understand the facts, as follows: Mr. J. K. Averill laid out through his own land a street and named it Dewey street, the street starting from Washington and running a short distance and there made an angle and ran to Hill street, coming into Hill street about 50 feet from the so-called Carleton street, and I think this street was accepted by the city and called Dewey street. After this some of the property owners wanted this changed so it would start from Carleton street and run straight through to Washington street, making Carleton and Dewey streets one continuous street. After some considerations between Mr. Averill and other property owners they finally came to an agreement to change the street to its present location, with the stipulation with Mr. Averill that the street should be called Dewey street across his land, which I think the council agreed to, or the street committee by word of mouth, and which was done as agreed, Mr. Averill exacting this before he would agree to make the change, the street being all on his land.

The question came up later in regard to one street having two names, and without any knowledge or suggestion, or recommendation from Mr. Averill, I offered a resolution to change the so-called Carleton street to Dewey street, which was adopted by the city council, making the street one name, which had been done by other streets in the city that were under like circumstances. I do not think the street was ever officially named Carleton street, and I think if the gentleman who is so ready to declare the acts of others illegal will look it up he may find that Dewey street is named in accordance with the law and ordinances of the city and that there is no foundation for the name of Carleton street. I have not looked it up, though, but as far as I have looked up, I have not found any foundation for the name, other than the sign which is nailed onto a certain house on Carleton street, and whose owner says it has got to be so, for he says so. I write this in answer to the brilliant declaration of Mr. Beckley before the board on the evening of July 25. Mr. Beckley says that myself and Mr. Averill fixed up a scheme to change the name of Carleton street and that I railroaded it through and he has, apparently, after four years just woke up to the fact that the name has been changed. He did not want it should be, and says it was done contrary to the city ordinances. Perhaps Mr. Beckley has misread his calling and should practice law instead of setting curbing, for with his faculty of explaining the law and his ability to tell when man are concealing or formulating schemes, he should not deprive the community at large of his valuable services. Thanking you for kindness, will close.

JOLLY PARTY
FOR QUINCYOne Hundred Manufacturers
Left Last Night.

ON THREE DAYS' EXCURSION

Reached Boston at 5:08 This Morning.
Without Mishap, All Prepared for an Enjoyable Time—Will Return Sunday.

Amid the witty warning of "Don't go near the water," "Hold tight when you shoot the chutes," and above all things, "Beware of snapshot photographers," the granite manufacturers' party—one hundred in number—left Barre last night at 9:45 on their biennial visit to Quincy, Mass., where for three days they will be the guests of the Quincy granite manufacturers, returning Sunday night. Last summer the Barre men entertained their Quincy friends, and the year before the local manufacturers made a trip similar to the one undertaken last night.

They were not all manufacturers who went on the well-equipped special last night, many taking advantage of the opportunity to visit in and about Boston. There were four cars on the train, a combination, a day coach and two sleepers. The sleepers were filled when the train left Montpelier, and the more staid members of the party were earnestly hoping that there would be a chance to use the berths. Generally some members of the party take upon themselves the hilarious duty of keeping everybody awake throughout the night. Conductor William Hamilton had charge of the forward end of the train, and Conductor Bart Fitzgerald of the rear. The latter turned over his charge to the Boston & Maine conductor, Lawrence Ford, at Woodsville, N. H. Passenger Agent F. W. More and Superintendent Stanton of the Montpelier & Wells River were in town to see that the party got a good start.

The local committee arranged its part of the programme to perfection, and so far as they are concerned the trip will be delightful. The committee were: John W. McDonald, William Barclay, Jr., A. J. Young, H. J. M. Jones, George Robins, George Cross, William Marr, D. F. Ryle, Alex. Duncan, James Campbell, Mr. Campbell, as treasurer of the party, had no small task in keeping track of the sale of tickets.

At Boston this morning the party was turned over to the Quincy committee, Messrs. John L. Miller, Harry Nicol and Elcock. After going about Boston and the shipbuilding yards in Quincy today the two associations will meet tonight for discussion, and tomorrow the great day of the trip comes in the trip to Crescent Park, Rhode Island. The attractions provided for the day are really attractive, beginning with a ball game between Quincy and Barre and ending with a famous Rhode Island shore dinner, with a wide range of diversions between. The Quincy committee sent up a list of thirty different amusements to be had at Crescent Park. The members of the party were as follows:

E. W. Carle	John W. McDonald

Supt. Stanton received word this forenoon that this special train arrived at Boston this morning at 5:08 and that there were no mishaps on the trip.
